Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Mellon Lecture: Under the Auspices of the Society for Biological Research, University of Pittsburgh, Third Lecture; Recent Biochemical Investigations on Blood and Urine; Their Bearing on Clinical and Experimental Medicine When a physician had to wait four days before he could learn how much ammonia a given urine contained, he did not bother himself very often about determinations of ammonia. And, as a matter of fact, this good old method for the determination of ammonia was so little used that investigators gradually forgot how the method must be employed in order to yield correct results. Today any analytic method in urine analysis which cannot be finished within less than two hours stands in need of further revision. Most of the common determinations in urine and blood will become from fifteen to thirty minute methods for single determinations, and also several determinations will be made with little extra expenditure of time. Almost every material reduction in the time and labor required for a given determination is followed by an increase in the number of investigators who make researches based on that determination. But it is only when we come down to the very shortest of biochemical methods that they begin to appeal to clinicians, and it is, I think, no small triumph for the modern technic that clinicians have begun to compete with laboratory specialists in the fields of research suggested by these new methods. A considerable and constantly growing number of American physicians now possess laboratories in which chemical determinations are made. It is difficult as yet to appraise the probable value of this kind of work contributed by clinicians. A large proportion are busy...
