Excerpt: . . . sometimes late in making reimbursement payments. Nevertheless, DOD was paid for the reimbursable support it provided in most of the cases that we reviewed. 10 The Economy Act is often used as authority for DOD support to other agencies; it requires reimbursement of actual costs for the goods or services provided. We reviewed the records of three of the many agencies that DOD provided support to under this act. We selected these agencies because each provided lists that included many instances of DOD support under the Economy Act. We did not determine the universe of DODs Economy Act support to all agencies. We believe the 195 agreements of support that we chose are representative because they are typical of the Economy Act support that DOD and other agencies reported to us. DODs financial management regulation requires components involved in DOD Does Not Always civil activities to bill recipients for the support within 30 calendar days of Promptly Bill for Some the last month in which the support was provided. Supporting DOD units Reimbursable Support bill recipients directly or through the Defense Finance and Accounting Service. To determine whether DOD billed and collected reimbursable costs, we reviewed 195 instances of DOD Economy Act support for the Department of State, the Drug Enforcement Administration, and the Secret Service during fiscal years 1997 99. We found that DOD was in some cases slow in billing the three entities but collected about 36. 6 million in reimbursable support costs for 163 of the 195 instances. One area in which DOD acknowledged that it had not consistently collected reimbursements was for airlifts provided by the...
